MOTHER EARTH

Mother Earth actually looks after me,
 She neither expects nor charges a fee.
 Every year fresh fruits she provides to eat,
 For those fruits, one another man will beat.
 So much water is there for us all,
 For water it often becomes an ugly brawl.
 A tiny insect on her I am,
 Feeding me with her assorted jam.
 Man keeps beating her with his big bombs,
 When will he realize that she is alive and that it is wrong?
 Here we must begin to appreciate,
 Immediately before it gets too late.
 From our puny race she will defend herself,
 You are just begging her to annihilate yourself.

[Brawl – a noisy quarrel; assorted – made up of various sorts; puny – inexperienced, feeble; annihilate – destroy].

Prepare a brief review of the poem in 120 words. (7)
